

NC Division of Child Development and Early Education Distance Learning

Disclaimer

Distance Learning is an alternative way to obtain training which many individuals find beneficial. In November 2005, the North Carolina Division of Child Development and Early Education (DCDEE) established a policy on how distance learning courses can be used to satisfy NC in-service training requirements for child care staff in licensed child care facilities and homes. Noncredit-bearing distance learning courses must be reviewed and approved before they can be taken to satisfy in-service training requirements.

Any questions should be directed to the administrators of the specific site or agency you are choosing.

DCDEE may at any time update and revise this document. You are bound by these updates and revisions. Please check the DCDEE website-ncchildcare.nc.gov periodically to view any changes (available soon). If you have questions regarding in-service training approvals please contact the In-Service Training Consultant at (919)527-6608

NC child care staff cannot use distance learning courses for their orientation (unless specifically approved), First-Aid, CPR, playground safety, and ITS-SIDS training. Please note there are some agencies that are associated with an accredited college (meets DCDEE definition-see the definition on our website) and they offer distance learning. These sessions/courses would be approved for in-service training because of the college accreditation. It would have to be clear that the accredited college issued the hours.

We have listed the non-credit bearing distance learning courses/sessions that have been reviewed using DCDEE criteria to meet the North Carolina in-service training requirements. Check back periodically for updates.
